CASE STUDY

Fostering a Coaching Culture for Organisational Success

Client Overview:

Our client is the leading private general insurance company in the country. The Company offers a comprehensive and well-diversified range of products through multiple distribution channels, including motor, health, crop, fire, personal accident, marine, engineering, and liability insurance. With a legacy of over 21 years, they are committed to customer centricity with their people-first brand philosophy. The company has issued over 32.7 million policies, settled 3.6 million claims and has a Gross Written Premium (GWP) of ₹217.72 billion for the year ended March 31, 2023. They have 305 branches and 12,865 employees, as on March 31, 2023.

The Challenge:

In the dynamic business environment, leadership faces constant challenges and opportunities. To succeed, leaders must shift from a top-down approach to a more collaborative mindset. Our client realised this shift was crucial and wanted to foster a coaching culture among their leaders. This approach aimed to improve teamwork, encourage innovation, and boost employee engagement across the organisation.

Our client's decision to develop a coaching culture stemmed from the understanding that a collaborative leadership style is more effective in navigating complexities and driving positive outcomes. By embracing coaching principles, leaders can empower their teams, promote creativity, and foster a culture of continuous learning and improvement. This shift not only enhances team performance but also strengthens employee morale and commitment, ultimately driving overall organisational success.

Our Approach:

Our approach involved designing and implementing the “Leader as Coach” program for over 60 participants, including members from the management committee, Band I, and Band II business leaders. The program was structured in a 2+1 day workshop format, strategically spaced three months apart between the first two sessions and the final one. This setup allowed participants to deeply engage with the material, apply their learning in real-world scenarios, and return for further development and reinforcement. Additionally, we provided participants with weekly nudges focusing on coaching concepts, principles, and frameworks to sustain their learning momentum between sessions. Collaborating closely with our client, we delivered a comprehensive coaching module that emphasised developing change facilitation skills, conducting SWOT analysis, setting goals, and creating unique strategies. Through live coaching sessions, demo sessions, and continuous reinforcement of coaching concepts, participants were able to integrate coaching principles effectively into their leadership styles.

Contribution:

The coaching program sparked a remarkable transformation within the organisation. Leaders enthusiastically adopted a coaching mentality, gaining proficiency in navigating change, fostering innovation, and unlocking their teams’ potential. This shift in approach led to overall improvements in leadership and created a supportive coaching culture across the company. As a result, employees became more engaged and productive. Even casual conversations turned into opportunities for coaching, where everyone improved their listening skills and learned to ask insightful questions instead of jumping to solutions. This change encouraged critical thinking, effective problem-solving, and continuous growth for everyone involved.
